PERHAPS NONE OF THE PRESENT-KERR JUBORS WILL TRY THE CASE.

The Trial Not Likely to Be Begun Before the Middle of June -- Judge Patterson Makes an Early Start This Morning, and Connect Sets Out to Reject More Talesmen-The District-Attorney in Court Late.

Mr. Justice Patterson is determined to push the trial of Thomas B. Kerr for complicity in the bribery of the Aldermanic coodle combine of 1884. Contrary to custom, he opened court this morning at 10 o'clock, continuing till 12 o'clock, the beginning of the Saturday half holiday.

Kerr's counsel, ex-Judge Noah Davis, Bourke Cockran and John H. Bird, were promptly on hand, but the District-Attorney's office was unrepresented, which fact was the incentive for a ponderous joke from the bench and a motion for a nolle pros. from Mr. Bird, who is the funny man in the legal battle.

There were six jurors in the box at the adjournment last night, only one of whom—the last-was entirely acceptable to both prosecution and defense. The six are as follows: coution and defense. The six are as follows:
Foreman, William D. Sadller, publisher, 81 Berclay street: John E. Hunter, photographer, 1492
Third avenue; William A. Wilson, hardware dealer, 302 East Pitteenth street; George R. Witte, Becretary of the Second Avenue German Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association; George M.
Huntington, telegraph operator for the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company; John T. Welch, Superintendent of the Budson River Ice Company.

The prosecution had objected to Messrs. Hunter and Witte, and the defense didn't want Messrs. Sadlier, Wilson and Hunting There were only a baker's dozen of sum-

There were only a baker's dozen of summoned jurors in court to-day, but the lawyers began their work of examining candidates with an air which seemed to say plainly that these were enough for a day's work.

The difficulty of obtaining jurors is greater than in any of the former boodle trials, and it is predicted that this trial will be even longer than the five weeks' wrangle over Jacob Sharp.

Every citizen of New York who has average intelligence has read about and is well informed regarding the iniquities of the 1884 franchise giving up Broadway to Sharp and his friends.

which might induces him in making up a verdict.

Everybody knows that accomplices Full-graff and Duffy are to testify, and those who want to avoid serving on the jury can do so easily by admitting a prejudice against informers.

The box will not be filled before a week from to-day, probably, and after that it will be emptied and refilled three times in all probability.

The prospect is that not a witness will be sworn in the actual trial before the middle of June, and the twelve men chosen for a jury will be lucky if they get off in time to celebrate the Fourth of July with their friends. And at any rate the jurors will be obliged to go through the usual formalities to renew their acquaintance with their families after their release.

After an hour and a half a seventh juror was accepted, Henry C. Le Fevre, real estate agent at 476 Second avenue. He seems an intelligent, fair-minded man. At noon the trial was adjurned until Mon-

SCENE AT THE CONFERENCE.

A Woman Interrupts Prayers to Ask Permission to Speak.

There was a little sensation at the Methodist Episcopal Conference at the Metropolitan Opera-House this morning. The boxes and galleries were crowded with ladies, attracted by the debate over the admission of women

The Rev. J. D. Wilson, of South Carolina had finished reading the psalm in the opening exercises, when a woman seated in the first box on the second tier on the right side of the house arose and said :
"May I have the privilege of saying a few

"May I have the privilege of saying a few words?"

All eyes were turned on her. She was fashionably dressed and about forty years of age. She was nervous, and it was evident that she was affilicted with hysteria.

Dr. Wilson proceeded with the prayer. Chaplain McCabe made his way to the box and quietly led the woman out of the house. When asked to give her name she refused.

When the debate was about to be resumed the Rev. Dr. Buckley scored a point against the brethren who would not let him make a second speech yesterday. It was that as no special order of the day had been adopted the debate could not go on without a suspension of the rules. The point was decided well taken, but the rules were suspended and the debate proceeded, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk advocating the cause of the women.

Lay delegate D. T. Dearing, of Puget Sound, was excused. His daughter died at the hotel last night. Dr. Wilbor, of the Central New York Conference, was also excused to attend the funeral of a member of his family.

Claimed to Have a Double. William Featherstone, an employee of the University Club Library, Madison avenue and Twenty. sixth street, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market sixth street, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Court this morning on a charge of stealing three volumes of the "Cyclopedia of Biography," valued as $21. This morning Featherstone was about to sail for Europe on the Aurania. He had his ticket bought. He said in the court that there was another man in the club like him. Detectives said that they would get the other man. The prisoner was remanded.

Safe in St. Louis. NEWARE, May 5. -- Mrs. Jacgers, of Ferry street, yeaterday received a letter from her son, Albert F. Jacgors, who disappeared last Saturday. It was dated St. Louis, and Jacgors stated that he intended locating permanently in the West. He did not say why he left Newark. His accounts with the New Jersey Central are correct, ann he left the drawer Sim, the result of the day's sale of tickets.

The Brewers and the Men Carrying or The brewers' lockout continues to be the subject of discussion among the organized working people, and rumors and counterrumors are flying about. One report had it to-day that many of the locked-out men are so discouraged over the prospect of ultimate success that they

Another cause of excitement is the assertion made by Lawyer Untermyer that all the executive officers of the Central Labor Union, the Journeymen Brewers' Union and the Beer Drivers' Union will be arrested on the charge of conspiracy in attempting to injure the business of the boss brewers by enforcing a boycott.

Mr. Untermyer informed an Evening World reporter that it was one of the objects of the examination of witnesses on his part during the recent investigation to obtain evidence that would enable the Brewers' Association to commit the leaders in the present movement.

Association to commit the leaders in the present movement.

Officers of the Central Labor Union at the brewerymen's headquarters in Forsyth street said to the reporter that they were sching to have the boss brewers arrest them, but they believed that it was a "bluff." They promise more vigorous boycotting than ever after the Central Labor Union gets through its work to morrow.

They promise more vigorous boycotting than ever after the Central Labor Union gets through its work to morrow.

Secretary Riege, of the Beer Drivers' Union, at the meeting of the members of that body in lower Clarendon Hall this forenoon said that there was no truth in the report. He had heard that three men had applied to Beadleston & Woerz for re-employment. The meeting of the inside brewerymen was a large one in upper Clarendon Hall. The Chairman said that there was no truth in the rumors of disaffection among the men who have remained out so long.

Several officers of the Brewery Workingmen's Union were at the Yorkville Court attending the examination of members of the union who are charged with assaulting alleged "scabs."

The work of evicting the families of the locked-out men of S. Liebmann's Sons' brewery continues in Williamsburg. It is said 200 persons will have to find quarters other than those owned by that firm.

The brewers' lockout and the arbitration proceedings will be discussed at the Labor Lyceum, 145 Eighth street, to-morrow evening.

A clerk who has been in the employ of the company for twenty-five years said: ''It is an outrage the way the clerks in the freight and passenger departments are paid.
''In the freight department about one hundred and ten clerks are employed, nine out of ten being married men, with large families. Their salaries range from $40 to $55 per month, and that is hardly enough to support them for two weeks.
''There has been a rumor around for the past few days to the effect that the clerks are going to organize a union and demand an increase of 25 per cent.''

Another old railroad clerk, who has been in the employ of the company for twenty years, said: 'I don't believe that the Vanderbilts know how poorly the clerks are paid. The men who have charge of the different departments cut the salaries of the clerks as low as possible in order to get credit for running their departments with as little cost as possible.

"If Mr. Vanderbilt had, instead of erectning their departments with as little cost as possible.

"If Mr. Vanderbilt had, instead of erecting a building for the use of railroad men (which is of little use to many of them) increased their salaries, he would surely have received more thanks."

FOR LILLIE HOYLE'S MURDER.

DIXON COWIE, HER UNCLE, IS ARRESTED AT MERIDEN, CONN.

He Was the Last Man Who Saw Her Alive. and the Detectives Believe He Had a Reason for Making Away with Her-After Months of Patient Work, Sufficient Evidence Is Secured-Cowie In Jall.

ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD. STERLING JUNCTION, Mass., May 5 .- After months of active and almost hopeless efforts on the part of the State detectives to find evidence to warrant the arrest of the murderer or an accessory to the murder of Lillie Hoyle, of Webster, whose sudden departure from home last September, and the fluding of whose body, decomposed, in the old corncrib, in Oxford, three weeks later, startled the community, an arrest was made last night at Meriden, Conn. Detectives Shaw and Hayter arrested Dixon R. Cowie, who will be taken to Webster to-day for arraignment. It will be remembered that from the very first Dixon Cowie was thought to know much more about the disappearance and death of Lillie Hoyle, his niece, than he chose to tell, and the general opinion was that he was concerned somehow with Lillie's departure, but just how no one could tell, as there was no direct evidence to associate him with the crime. Circumstantial evidence against him was very strong.

By his own confession he was the last person to see Lillie Hoyle alive and the last one to talk to her.

On the night Lillie left her home for the last time a young man named Grimley slept with Cowie, who stood, as he says, at the with Cowie, who stood, as he says, at the front corner of the house while Cowie went around to the side door to get his evening paper, and it was at that side door where he alleged he conversed with the dead girl two or three minutes.

Of that conversation Cowie has given several versions. Young Grimley, however, who stood within a few feet of the door, told who stood within a few feet of the door, told the officers that he saw no one but Cowie, heard no talking, and that Cowie was gone only long enough to cover the distance, get his papers and return.

Then there was evidence to show that the uncle and girl had been intimate and that this manifestation of mutual regard had raised the ire of Mrs. Cowie, who is said to have looked with suspicion on the husband and niece. These suspicions were duly regarded by the officers, who knew that if Cowie was the father of Lillie Hoyle's unborn child he had a motive for the commission of a crime, and upon that theory Officers Shaw and Hayter have worked indefatigably, until they have accumulated enough evidence to warrant the arrest.

they have accumulated enough evidence to warrant the arrest.

Webstre, Mass., May 5.—The officers arrived on the 10.15 train and at once went to the District Court, where Cowie was arraigned before Judge Jillson. After the reading of the charge in the warrant, the Judge asked him how much time he wanted to secure his witnesses. Cowie said he did not know, also that he did not know what to do in the case. The Judge finally adjourned the court to Saturday, May 19, and Cowie was committed to the Worcester Jail without bail.

rid himself of within a few days after beginning his spring practice, but this year it is said to have obstinately refused to leave him, despite his devotion to Turkish baths, diet, and exercise—that is, to leave in sufficient amount to bring him within weight.

Last year McLaughlin trained down from about one hundred and forty pounds is a short time so that he made his first mount at Washington in May at 115%, the fraction being over-weight. He had no difficulty in keeping his weight down during the season, though at the close he looked ghastly.

The winter was spent by him at the Charendon Hotel, Brooklyn, and he weighed 125 pounds when he left there two weeks age to go into training at the Dwyer Bros. stables. He went to Washington, hoping to make his first mount in the Ly City races. Day after day passed and he did not ride in a race, and announcement was made that he was ill. The difficulty was, it is alleged, his inability to get to racing weight.

Recognizing the fact that he could not mount at the Capitol City, McLaughlin went home to Brooklyn early this week to put himself in the hands of his physicians. He took up his revidence at the Dwyer Bros. stables on the Brooklyn Jockey Club course, and has been making daily visits to Dr. A. L. Wood's Turkish baths, at 32 and 34 Clinton street, ever since.

and has been making daily visits to Ds. A. L. Wood's Turkish baths, at $2 and $3 climton street, ever since.

An Evenine World reporter attempted to find the popular jockey yesterday. At the Clarendon Hotel, where it was said he was stopping, the clerk declared that he was at Sheepshead Bay, and volunteered the remark that Jimmy was having a hard time of it trying to get off twenty pounds; that his efforts were making him ill, and he doubted if "Mac" would be able to ride at the Brooklyn Jockey Club's races on the 15th.

At the stables on the Jockey Club track the reporter was informed that McLaughlin had gone to the city. His inquiries concerning the jockey's weight caused the grooms and stable boys to view him with suspicion, but they said they thought that "Mae" would succeed in his fight against the flesh.

The reporter was just half an hour behind McLaughlin at the Turkish bath, and the clerk in attendance could not tell where he had gone. He acknowledged that the little rider was having a harder time than usual in working down to weight, but he thought that they would get him there. He would not tell what McLaughlin weighed at present.

An expert in turf matters has advanced the idea, which is accepted by many, that McLaughlin's trouble is not one of superfluity of flesh, but a change in the character and weight of his bones, which neither baths, diet nor exercise can alter.

If this is so this hero of the turf will have to live on the memory of past victories won.
